Caring for Family Caregivers

by Charlene Thurston, RN, ANP & Francina Bardsley, MS

“Take care of the elders for they have come a long way; take care of the children for they have a long way to go; take care of those in between for they are doing the work.”  African Proverb

Since our last newsletter, we, at Hospice, have been focusing on developing a framework for a Caregiver Resource Program, a new initiative which would provide meaningful support to the many family caregivers of persons with chronic illness or disabilities in our community. Our intention is to again expand our services beyond those typically provided by hospices, so that much of the same support that is available to family caregivers of terminally ill patients, could be made available to caregivers of non-terminally ill persons.

The National Family Caregivers Association (NFCA) defines a family caregiver as “someone who has a deep personal relationship with a person who is chronically ill or disabled and whose own life has been impacted by their loved one’s condition.” The family caregiver may be an immediate or extended family member, neighbor, or friend providing care and support varying from 24 hours/day to intermittent care.

Many caregivers dedicate over 20-40 hours/week caring for loved ones, care which is often both physically and emotionally demanding. Very often care is provided by people who are elderly themselves, and it is not unusual for the caregivers to become ill and wonder whether they’ll out-survive the person whom they’re caring.

From the Foundation President  Gussie Beaugrand

As I reflect on the first six months of my term as president, I feel truly privileged to be a part of this organization that does so much for the Nantucket community. Our Hospice Program director and our Volunteer Coordinator continue the vital work of the Hospice program with the Interdisciplinary Team and the many wonderful Hospice volunteers. Our 2002 Annual Fall Appeal has, once again, brought an overwhelming response from both from full-time as well as summer residents. In addition, the plans for the 2003 Dreamcatcher Dinner and Auction are well under way and the committee has received many wonderful donations for the auction, including the donation of six paintings with a value of over $12,000, from the family of a former Hospice patient.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your continued response and generosity: to those of you who offer your time, talent, and energy to serve as volunteers to serve within the Hospice Program, on the Board of Trustees and on the Dreamcatcher auction committee; as well as those of you that offer your financial support through repeated and generous donations. You all play a very important part in ensuring that the Hospice Care of Nantucket program is able to expand its initiatives and to continue to offer its services free of charge to the community.

At other times, care is provided by adult children who are trying to balance work, spousal, and childcare needs of their own, with those of a parent who needs care. Added to their caregiving burden is the grief they feel over the increasing losses in their loved one’s health. The stress, exhaustion, and financial strain that can occur put caregivers, and often their families, at risk for emotional and physical illness.

The NFCA has given form to the insights of professional and family caregivers in its “Principles of Caregiver Empowerment.” These principles are presented as guideposts in the caregiver’s search for a sense of direction and inner peace.

• Choose to take charge of your life. Don’t let your loved one’s illness or disability always take center stage.
• Honor, value and love yourself. You’re doing a very hard job and deserve some quality time, just for you. Self care isn’t a luxury. It’s a necessity.
• Seek, accept, and, at times, demand help. Don’t be ashamed to ask for help. When people offer assistance, accept it and suggest specific things that they can do.
• Stand up and be counted. Stand up for your rights as a caregiver and a citizen.

Since caregivers are frequently unrecognized and receive little help and support in this task, our hope at Hospice is to bring attention to their needs and to try to develop services, in collaboration with other community organizations, that help decrease their isolation and provide respite, support, education, and practical assistance. We invite you to call or write us if you have any thoughts or ideas about how we might best meet these goals.

For more information on family caregiving, see the NFCA website (www.nfcacares.org).
Please join us for the Tenth Annual Dreamcatcher Dinner and Auction to be held on Sunday, June 15, 2003 at the Galley on Cliffside Beach.

This fabulous evening will with begin with aperitifs and Spanky’s raw bar, followed by a live auction and dinner served al fresco in a gala tent on Cliffside Beach. A delicious four-course dinner prepared by the Chef de Cuisine will be served with wines to compliment each course. These wines will be selected from different regions by hosts David and Geoffrey Silva and will give an international flair to the event.

Once again Rafael Osona will lend his wit and power of persuasion to the live auction. Offerings include many unique Nantucket experiences, fine dining in a number of cities in the northeast, a spectator boat for the 2003 Opera House Cup and destinations such as Alaska, Telluride, London, and the Caribbean.

This year we are delighted to offer a number of paintings by two well-known Nantucket artists, Illya Kagan and Helen Sharp Potter. These paintings were generously donated to the auction by the family of a former Hospice patient.

Mark your calendars now as this will be an evening not to be missed. We look forward to seeing you in June on Cliffside Beach!

There’s more to Hospice...

Did you know that in addition to providing comprehensive physical, psychological, social, and spiritual care to persons with life-threatening illness, and support for their families...

JCAHO ACCREDITATION

We are excited to report that Hospice Care of Nantucket has again received a 3 year accreditation by the Joint Commission of Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. JCAHO is the national organization which conducts voluntary surveys of healthcare programs to ensure that high quality service is being provided. Three years is the longest period accredited per survey. In April, all of the homecare departments of the hospital were surveyed - Hospice, Community & Home Health Dept., and Cottage Care Unlimited - and received a combined score of 92%!
Spirituality & Health Conference

Hospice is once again participating with other community members in planning the 5th Annual Conference on Spirituality and Health. This year’s conference will focus on creating and telling our life’s stories. Jay O’Callahan, world renowned storyteller, will be the featured speaker, and several local and off-island experts will lead afternoon breakout sessions on various methods of expression, including art, music, drumming, movement, etc.

Recognizing and sharing the stories of our lives help us find the meaning in our experiences and those of others. Stories help us learn from and connect to one another in profound ways, and can often lead to significant personal growth and transformation.

We hope you’ll all save the date of Friday, October 24th, to participate in what should be an exciting and rewarding conference!

You might also be interested to learn that the Noon Day Forums are again taking place on Tuesdays from 12:10 – 1:00 PM. These forums are open to the public and are held at the Methodist Church.

Coping with Public Tragedy

On April 30, 2003, Hospice Care of Nantucket joined hundreds of hospices throughout the nation in locally hosting the 10th Annual Bereavement Teleconference of the Hospice Foundation of America. This year’s topic, Coping with Public Tragedy, brought together an outstanding panel of experts to discuss what defines a public tragedy, what types of reactions and responses are commonly seen after such events, and what helpful interventions might key organizations provide in order to best serve their communities.
